Summary

Voznyak V. What Calls Us Into Thinking? (Martin Heidegger’s Concept). The article researches Heidegger’s concept of thinking in terms of the question, "What calls us into thinking?". The author states that the very tension of such questioning taken in the ontological sense makes it possible to derive such thinking as to the actual level of implementation of its essence. Keywords: thinking, being, forgetfulness of being, requesting, use, the call.
